The Coat of Arms
1818
Medical Department of the Army

A 1976 etching by Vassil Ekimov of an original color print that appeared in The Military Surgeon, Vol XLI, No 2, 1917
The first line of medical defense in wartime is the combat medic. Although in ancient times medics carried the caduceus into battle to signify the neutral, humanitarian nature of their tasks, they have never been immune to the perils of war. They have made the highest sacrifices to save the lives of others, and their dedication to the wounded soldier is the foundation of military medical care.
Textbooks of Military Medicine

Published by the

Office of The Surgeon General
Department of the Army, United States of America

Editor in Chief and Director
Dave E. Lounsbury, MD, FACP
Colonel, MC, US Army
Borden Institute
Assistant Professor of Medicine
F. Edward Hébert School of Medicine
Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences

Military Medical Editor
Ronald F. Bellamy, MD
Colonel, US Army, Retired
Borden Institute
Associate Professor of Military Medicine
Associate Professor of Surgery
F. Edward Hébert School of Medicine
Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences
The TMM Series

Published Textbooks

- Medical Consequences of Nuclear Warfare (1989)
- Conventional Warfare: Ballistic, Blast, and Burn Injuries (1991)
- Military Dermatology (1994)
- Military Psychiatry: Preparing in Peace for War (1994)
- Anesthesia and Perioperative Care of the Combat Casualty (1995)
- War Psychiatry (1995)
- Medical Aspects of Chemical and Biological Warfare (1997)
- Rehabilitation of the Injured Soldier, Volume 2 (1999)
- Ophthalmic Care of the Combat Casualty (2003)
- Military Medical Ethics, Volume 1 (2003)
- Military Medical Ethics, Volume 2 (2003)
Deploying a healthy force at any time to any part of the world requires comprehensive and coordinated preventive medicine services. The challenges and the achievements of military preventive medicine in the US Armed Forces are embodied by these soldiers crossing a river in Haiti in 1995. They represent a carefully screened cadre of young Americans who enter military service and benefit from a scientifically sound program to reduce the threat of infectious diseases and injuries during basic training and deployment. When deployed to a harsh environment such as this one, they are prepared for potential hazardous exposures—infecitous diseases, climatic extremes, chemical and nuclear exposures, and mental stressors—by military preventive medicine professionals. Military medical research and development provides their commanders with effective countermeasures. Their health is monitored to detect events that threaten individual health and operational effectiveness both in the field and in garrison. Military preventive medicine has always been a fundamental factor for ensuring operational success, but as US military doctrine shifts to emphasize rapid and relatively smaller deployments of forces accompanied by small medical elements, the preventive medicine mission takes on a new urgency.

MILITARY PREVENTIVE MEDICINE
MOBILIZATION AND DEPLOYMENT
Volume 2

Specialty Editor

PATRICK W. KELLEY
Colonel, Medical Corps, U.S. Army (Retired)

Borden Institute
Walter Reed Army Medical Center
Washington, D. C.

Office of The Surgeon General
United States Army
Falls Church, Virginia

United States Army Medical Department Center and School
Fort Sam Houston, Texas

United States Army Medical Research and Materiel Command
Fort Detrick, Frederick, Maryland

Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences
Bethesda, Maryland

2005
This volume was prepared for military medical educational use. The focus of the information is to foster discussion that may form the basis of doctrine and policy. The opinions or assertions contained herein are the private views of the authors and are not to be construed as official or as reflecting the views of the Department of the Army or the Department of Defense.

Dosage Selection:
The authors and publisher have made every effort to ensure the accuracy of dosages cited herein. However, it is the responsibility of every practitioner to consult appropriate information sources to ascertain correct dosages for each clinical situation, especially for new or unfamiliar drugs and procedures. The authors, editors, publisher, and the Department of Defense cannot be held responsible for any errors found in this book.

Use of Trade or Brand Names:
Use of trade or brand names in this publication is for illustrative purposes only and does not imply endorsement by the Department of Defense.

Neutral Language:
Unless this publication states otherwise, masculine nouns and pronouns do not refer exclusively to men.

CERTAIN PARTS OF THIS PUBLICATION PERTAIN TO COPYRIGHT RESTRICTIONS. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

NO COPYRIGHTED PARTS OF THIS PUBLICATION MAY BE REPRODUCED OR TRANSMITTED IN ANY FORM OR BY ANY MEANS, ELECTRONIC OR MECHANICAL (INCLUDING PHOTOCOPY, RECORDING, OR ANY INFORMATION STORAGE AND RETRIEVAL SYSTEM), WITHOUT PERMISSION IN WRITING FROM THE PUBLISHER OR COPYRIGHT OWNER.

Published by the Office of The Surgeon General at TMM Publications
Borden Institute
Walter Reed Army Medical Center
Washington, DC 20307-5001

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data
Military preventive medicine: mobilization and deployment / specialty editor, Patrick W. Kelley. p. ; cm. -- (Textbooks of military medicine) Includes bibliographical references and index.

PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
10, 09, 08, 07, 06, 05, 04, 03 5 4 3 2 1
Contents

Foreword by The Surgeon General \hspace{1cm} xvii
Preface \hspace{1cm} xix

SECTION 5: Epidemiology in the Field
31. Disease and Nonbattle Injury Surveillance: Outcome Measure for Force Health Protection \hspace{1cm} 707
32. Outbreak Investigation \hspace{1cm} 723
33. Epidemiologic Measurement: Basic Concepts and Methods \hspace{1cm} 755
34. Laboratory Support for Infectious Disease Investigations in the Field \hspace{1cm} 783

SECTION 6: Infectious Diseases of Concern
35. Diseases Transmitted Primarily by Arthropod Vectors \hspace{1cm} 803
36. Diseases Transmitted Primarily from Animals to Humans \hspace{1cm} 937
37. Diseases Transmitted by Food, Water, and Soil \hspace{1cm} 999
38. Diseases Spread by Close Personal Contact \hspace{1cm} 1117
39. Diseases Controlled Primarily by Vaccination \hspace{1cm} 1213
40. Principles of Infection Control and Prevention During Military Deployment \hspace{1cm} 1249

SECTION 7: Preventive Medicine Efforts Following Disasters
41. The Challenge of Humanitarian Assistance in the Aftermath of Disasters \hspace{1cm} 1269
42. Military and Public Health Aspects of Natural Disasters \hspace{1cm} 1289
43. Complex Emergencies \hspace{1cm} 1315
44. Public Health Perspectives Related to Technological Disasters and Terrorism \hspace{1cm} 1337
45. The International Humanitarian Response System and the US Military \hspace{1cm} 1351
46. Domestic Disaster Response: FEMA and Other Governmental Organizations \hspace{1cm} 1363
47. Nutritional Assessment and Nutritional Needs of Refugee or Displaced Populations \hspace{1cm} 1375

SECTION 8: Postdeployment
48. Psychological Aspects of Deployment and Reunion \hspace{1cm} 1395
49. Medical Issues in Redeployment \hspace{1cm} 1425

Abbreviations and Acronyms \hspace{1cm} xxiii
Index \hspace{1cm} xxvii
Contributors

DAVID ARDAY, MD, MPH
Medical Epidemiologist, Office of Clinical Standards and Quality, Health Care Financing Administration, 7500 Security Boulevard, Baltimore, MD 21244

NAOMI E. ARONSON, MD
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army; Director, Infectious Diseases Division, Room A3058, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, MD 20814

THOMAS J. BALKIN, PhD
Research Psychologist, Chief, Department of Neurobiology and Behavior, Division of Neuropsychiatry, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Silver Spring, MD 20910-7500

PAUL L. BARROWS, DVM, PhD
Colonel, Veterinary Corps, US Army (Ret); 156 Crazy Cross Road, Wimberly, TX 78676

GREGORY BELENKY, MD
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army; Director, Division of Neuropsychiatry, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Silver Spring, MD 20910-7500

S. WILLIAM BERG, MD, MPH
Captain, Medical Corps, US Navy (Retired); Director, Hampton Health District, 3130 Victoria Boulevard, Hampton, VA 23661-1588

LEONARD N. BINN, PhD
Supervisory Research Microbiologist, Department of Virus Diseases, Division of Communicable Diseases and Immunology, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Silver Spring, MD 20910-7500

KENT BRADLEY, MD, MPH
Lieutenant Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army; 7th Infantry Division Surgeon, Fort Carson, CO 80913

RICHARD J. BRENNAN, MBBS, MPH
Director, Health Unit, International Rescue Committee, 122 East 42nd Street, New York, NY 10168, (212) 351-3019; Formerly, Visiting Scientist, National Center for Environmental Health, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Atlanta, Georgia

LAUREL BROADHURST, MD, MPH
Staff Physician, Weaverville Family Medicine Associates, 117 Hillcrest Drive, Weaverville, NC 28782

RICHARD BROADHURST, MD, MPH
Colonel, Medical Corps, North Carolina Army Guard, Commander, Company C, 161st Area Support Medical Battalion, Weaverville, NC 28782

STEPHANIE BRODINE, MD
Captain, Medical Corps, US Navy (Ret); Professor and Head, Division of Epidemiology and Biostatistics, Graduate School of Public Health, San Diego State University, San Diego, CA 92184

ARTHUR E. BROWN, MD, MPH
Lieutenant Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army; Department of Retrovirology, Armed Forces Research Institute of Medical Sciences, Bangkok, Thailand, APO AP 96546

JOANNE BROWN, DVM
Colonel, Veterinary Corps, US Army (Ret); Rt 2, Box 152B, Monticello, FL 32344

DORIS BROVNIE, MD, MPH
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army (Ret); President and Chief Executive Officer, Browne and Associates, Inc. Washington, DC 21702

JOHN F. BRUNDAGE, MD
Colonel, Medical Corps US Army (Ret); Epidemiologist, Henry M. Jackson Foundation for the Advancement of Military Medicine, Army Medical Surveillance Activity, US Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine, Aberdeen Proving Ground, MD

A.P.C.C. HOPPERUS BUMA, MD
Commander, Medical Branch, Royal Netherlands Army; Head of Naval Medical Training; PO Box 1010 (MCP 24D), 1201 DA Hilversum, The Netherlands

FREDERICK BURKLE, MD, MPH
Captain, Medical Corps, US Naval Reserve; Deputy Assistant Administrator, Bureau for Global Health, US Agency for International Development, Washington, DC 20523

ROBERT E. BURR, MD
Director of Endocrine Education, Division of Endocrinology, Bayside Medical Center, 3300 Main Street, Suite 3A, Springfield, MA 01199

WILLIAM R. BYRNE, MD
Colonel, Medical Corps US Army; Infectious Disease Officer, Infectious Disease Service, Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, DC 2307-5001

W. PATRICK CARNEY, MPH, PhD
Captain, MSC, US Navy (Ret); Professor, Department of Preventive Medicine and Biometrics, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, MD 20814-4799

DALE A. CARROLL, MD, MPH
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army (ret); Senior Vice President, Medical Affairs and Performance Improvement, Rockingham Memorial Hospital, 235 Cantrell, Harrisburg, VA 22801

LESTER C. CAUDLE III, MD, MTMH
Lieutenant Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army; Office of The Surgeon General, 5111 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22041-3206

KATHRYN L. CLARK, MD, MPH
Infectious Disease Analyst, Armed Forces Medical Intelligence center, 1607 Porter Street, Fort Detrick, Frederick MD 21702-5004

EDWARD T. CLAYSON, PhD
Lieutenant Colonel, MS, US Army; Product Manager, Joint Vaccine Acquisition Program, 64 Thomas Jefferson Dr., Frederick, MD 21702
RICHARD THOMAS, MD, MPH
Captain, Medical Corps, US Navy; Naval Environmental Health Center, 2510 Walmer Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23513-2617

RANDALL THOMPSON, DVM
Major, Veterinary Corps, US Army; 18th Medical Command, Unit 15232, APO AP 96205-0025

DAVID H. TRUMP, MD, MPH
Captain, Medical Corps, US Navy; Associate Professor and Director, Medical Student Education Programs, Department of Preventive Medicine and Biometrics, Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, 4301 Jones Bridge Road, Bethesda, MD 20814-4799

PAULA K. UNDERWOOD, MD, MPH
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army; Preventive Medicine Staff Officer, Proponent Office for Preventive Medicine at the office of The Surgeon General, 5111 Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, VA 22041

DAVID W. VAUGHN, MD, MPH
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army; Director, Military Infectious Diseases Research Program, US Army Medical Research and Materiel Command, 504 Scott Street, Fort Detrick, Frederick, MD 21702-5012

COLEEN WEESE, MD, MPH
Program Manager, Occupational and Environmental Medicine Program, US Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine, Aberdeen Proving Ground, MD 21010-5422

NANCY JO WESENSTEIN, PhD
Research Psychologist; Department of Neurobiology and Behavior, Division of Neuropsychiatry, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Silver Spring, MD 20910-7500

RICHARD WILLIAMS, MD
Captain, Medical Corps, US Navy; Chief Clinical Consultant, Armed Forces Medical Intelligence Center, Fort Detrick, Frederick, MD 21702-7591

BENJAMIN G. WITHERS
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army; Command Surgeon, US Army Materiel Command, 5001 Eisenhower Avenue, Alexandria VA 22333-0001

JAMES WRIGHT, MD
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Air Force (Ret); Occupational Medicine Physician, Concentra Medical Centers, 400 East Quincy, San Antonio, TX 78235

JAMES V. WRITER, MPH
Environmental Monitoring Team, US Department of Agriculture Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, 4700 River Road, Riverdale, MD 20737

ERIC P. H. YAP, MBBS, DPhil
Programme Head, Defence Medical and Environmental Research Institute, @DSO National Laboratories, 27 Medical Drive, Singapore 119597

KEVIN S. YESKEY, MD, FACEP

STEVEN YEVICH, MD, MPH
Colonel, Medical Corps, US Army (Ret); Director, VA National Center for Health Promotion and Disease Prevention, 3000 Croasdaile Drive, Durham, NC 27707

MARGAN J. ZAJDOWICZ, MD
Captain, Medical Corps, US Navy; Directorate for Medical Affairs, Naval Medical Center, Portsmouth, VA 23708

THADDEUS R. ZAJDOWICZ, MD
Captain, Medical Corps, US Navy; Command Surgeon, Joint Task Force Civil Support, US Joint Forces Command, Fort Monroe, VA 23551
Foreword

It has been over 60 years since George Dunham wrote the last major US textbook on military preventive medicine. Both then and now, the mission of military preventive medicine has been to preserve the fighting strength through population-based methods of disease and injury avoidance. A comparison, however, of the tables of contents of Dunham’s textbook and this one, Military Preventive Medicine: Mobilization and Deployment, illustrates that the scope of military preventive medicine has grown tremendously. This reflects changes in US warfighting doctrine, the expansion of the US military’s role in operations other than war, the emergence of new disease and injury threats, and the changing demographics of our warfighters.

US military doctrine is increasingly focused on rapid deployment of lighter units that (1) are more widely dispersed on the battle space and (2) achieve advantages through information, tactical, and strategic dominance. Future military engagements will often evolve rapidly and put a premium on conserving scarce, highly trained, human resources. Central to the conservation of human resources are the needs for knowledgeable leadership, an understanding of the lessons of past conflicts, and systematic estimates of the medical threat prior to exposure; this new volume in the Textbooks of Military Medicine series reflects these needs. In a force drawn from a finite pool of volunteers, it is critical to have balanced accession standards and to do minimal damage while realistically training recruits. The growing interest of women in military service has not only increased the pool of much-needed talent but has also necessitated that approaches to prevention of training injuries and health maintenance be reevaluated to ensure that they reflect the needs of all service members.

Unlike 50 years ago, our forces are now expected to be able to move within hours from the US to the battlefield and arrive ready to fight. Although warfare is obviously dangerous, the risk of disease and nonbattle injury on the battlefield has often been underappreciated—along with the potential of countermeasures to mitigate that risk. This morbidity is appreciated increasingly as not just physical but also psychological. In Dunham’s era, war-associated syndromes, nuclear and biological warfare, and emerging infections such as drug-resistant malaria, hepatitis C, and acquired immunodeficiency syndrome were not the threats that they are today. The requirement to conduct continuous surveillance for disease and nonbattle injury before, during, and after deployment speaks to the high investment that our military has in each service member and of their individual importance to military success.

In the post–Cold War era, the US military has been called on increasingly to assist with operations other than war including not only peacekeeping operations but also humanitarian assistance operations. In many of these operations, military preventive medicine is at the tip of the spear. Thus it is critical that all military medical personnel have an appreciation for the challenges posed by natural and manmade disasters, by large numbers of displaced persons, and for the different roles we may be called on to fill.

Military Preventive Medicine: Mobilization and Deployment reflects the evolution of preventive medicine in the military from its traditional focus on field hygiene and infectious disease control to encompassing the wide range of threats and scenarios associated with modern military service. There are many lessons to be learned from the textbook’s emphasis on history and the military relevance of the conditions covered. However, the essence of this volume, like the practice of military preventive medicine, is timeless: our nation’s greatness is reflected in our comprehensive care of those who serve. Preventive medicine of the highest quality is just recognition for their sacrifices and those of their families and communities. It is also a cornerstone to our military readiness. I hope that this textbook will help illuminate the path for those dedicated to pursuing that vision.

Lieutenant General Kevin C. Kiley, M.D.
The Surgeon General
US Army

Washington, DC
September 2005
Preface

Force health protection, although often a loosely defined focus of military medical departments in the past, has in the aftermath of the Persian Gulf War received especially explicit, thorough, and vigorous emphasis within the US Department of Defense. The overall US national military strategy at the turn of the millennium is to “shape, prepare, and respond” to potential national security threats around the world. As is noted in the Department of Defense’s Doctrine for Health Service Support in Joint Operations, force health protection has three corresponding functions: to shape a healthy and fit force, to prevent casualties through proper preparation of personnel, and to respond to casualties when they occur. Preventive Medicine is inherently central to developing a healthy and fit force and in keeping the force healthy through mobilization and deployment—even into the postdeployment phase. This is more critical than ever in light of a shrinking medical footprint and the need to provide immediate casualty care on the modern, rapidly mobile battlefield. Even once casualties occur, Preventive Medicine has an important tertiary prevention role that must be vigorously pursued if service members are to be successfully rehabilitated and avoid having their relatively manageable physical or mental problems evolve into long-term disabilities.

Force health protection is not only beneficial to the individual but also essential to unit readiness and performance. Contemporary military operations, whether in training, on the battlefield, or in the conduct of operations other than war, place units under the threat of an ever-widening array of biological, physical, and mental stressors. The mitigation of these requires military Preventive Medicine professionals to be familiar with a broad array of disciplines and to provide cohesive leadership and sound advice up and down the chain of command. This textbook aims to provide enabling insights with respect to these scientific, administrative, and leadership challenges.

The challenges of military Preventive Medicine are becoming ever more complex but are also very old. The solutions in many cases are well documented but often forgotten. In 1827, John Macculloch wrote prophetically that > it would seem, as if fatal, that the wisdom and experience of one generation should be forgotten by the next, that peace should extirpate the knowledge that had been gained in war.¹

In 2003, Preventive Medicine: Mobilization and Deployment emphasizes these often-forgotten lessons of the past and it also provides a comprehensive approach to protecting the force in the current context of the US military’s global security mission. We, as military medical professionals, must understand this approach to be well prepared for responding to this mission in a focused, competent, and compassionate manner. Our great nation and its sons and daughters who volunteer to take on its most arduous burdens have ever-rising expectations of military Preventive Medicine. At their peril, we ignore the lessons at our fingertips.

Patrick W. Kelley
Colonel, Medical Corps, U.S. Army (Retired)
Director, Board on Global Health
Institute of Medicine
National Academy of Sciences

Washington, DC
September 2005

¹ Maculloch J. Malaria: An essay on the production and propagation of this poison and on the nature and localities of the places by which it is produced: With an enumeration of the diseases caused by it, and to the means of preventing or diminishing them, both at home and in the naval and military service. London, England: Longman & Co; 1827.
The current medical system to support the U.S. Army at war is a continuum from the forward line of troops through the continental United States; it serves as a primary source of trained replacements during the early stages of a major conflict. The system is designed to optimize the return to duty of the maximum number of trained combat soldiers at the lowest possible echelon. Far-forward stabilization helps to maintain the physiology of injured soldiers who are unlikely to return to duty and allows for their rapid evacuation from the battlefield without needless sacrifice of life or function.